I believe separately someone had asked about a comprehensive review of EPA's authorities and applicability to W Va incident. We're in the midst of final review - does mid-week work for getting something back?

Here's an update:

On Jan. 10, WVDEP ordered Freedom to remove all material from all above ground storage tanks (ASTs). By Jan 20, Freedom reported to WVDEP that it by then had removed 20% of the material. On Jan. 24, WVDEP ordered Freedom to finish the removal by March 15, and then begin to dispose of the ASTs, and take measures adequate to contain any spills from that disposal.

With respect the disposal issue EPA helping to dispose of the ASTs.

1. The State has not requested any such help.
2. The disposal is not being done at the State's expense, but by Freedom under the orders from WVDEP.

Ex. 5 - Deliberative

5. WVDEP has applied to EPA for a Brownfields grant to help respond to the existing contamination.

Subject: WV Question

Mathy,

A question has come up regarding the role EPA may be able to play in the demolition of the facilities in WV in follow-up to the Governor's recent order for them to begin to tear down the facility on or before March 15, 2014.

If there was an ask for federal assistance, are there any programs within the EPA that they may qualify for?

Thanks in advance.
